Why is legal visiting canceled? and why in both buildings? And why is the women's access to commissary, corrlinks and social phone calls canceled for the week?

When you say inmates are currently out of their cells, we understand that is only from 2:30-3:30! Here is another report we just got:

We have been locked in our cells since yesterday afternoon with no heat or light. We were just let out for one hour at 2:30. There is no hot water in the showers and we have only received cold food.

David,

I do not have a lot of details at this time, but I have been informed that the heat is operational and that the inmates are currently out of their cells in the units. As for visiting, it appears it may be suspended again tomorrow, but Nicole will let you know first thing in the morning as to whether that changes.

Thank you,

Adam and Nicole — We need an update on what's happening. Below is a report from one of our clients.

My client said the lights went out at the MDC around 1pm yesterday. All the inmates were locked in after it happened and were still locked in this morning. There are no lights inside the cells, and they only get a bit of light coming in from the halls. He said there was no heat on the floor and they were not given any additional blankets or anything in response to the lower temperatures.

We appreciate and understand your concerns. To my knowledge, no inmates or staff were injured during the incident, which occurred in an area in which I understand no inmates were present. I have also been informed that the power outage did not impact the heating in the institutions. We will update you once we have more information.

Adam,

You've told us that visiting has been cancelled, but not why or what conditions are like for our clients. We have learned from our clients that there was some sort of fire and power outage on Sunday and that lighting and heat have been impacted. We don't know the extent of the damage or whether any of our clients are injured or have not received adequate medical care as a result of whatever incident occurred. And we are not able to reach out to our clients because we can't visit them. We are concerned about them, and their families are concerned about them. Much more information about what's going on would be greatly appreciated.

Adam,

I don't have information about anyone being physically injured in the fire, but we have received numerous complaints over the last two days from men on various housing units at the MDC about the lights being out, a lack of heat, a lack of hot water, noxious fumes, and a potentially long-term denial of access to social calls and corrlinks. Here are a few of the calls we have received:

Client called again and reported that they've been smelling noxious fumes (apparently from the fire or whatever it was with their generator/ power source) and seeing that the CO's have been wearing gas masks, and that one of them described the conditions as "inhumane."

Also, on the first day of the power outage they were locked in the dark for some 24 hours with no light except from battery-operated lamp(s) that an inmate(s) had from the commissary. There's been no laundry, no commissary, and minimal hot water. He's also heard reports that this could go on for another 20 – 30 days.

On the phone with a client in the west building. He was told by a case manager that they were going to be without phone, email and tv for "weeks." Every unit was locked down for much of the day yesterday and today; they're only just being let out for a few hours, probably until count at 5pm, and then will go back in. He sounded super frustrated.

Client called and says lights are out, minimal heat, and no email or phone calls to family.

We also remain totally unclear on why visiting/email/social calls/commissary are cancelled for women in the other building.

Thanks,
Deirdre

Good afternoon.

While I cannot give an exact date for the reopening of the west visiting room, and it will reopen as soon as it is usable, if visitation is not returned to normal by next week, a temporary procedure will be implemented to allow for legal visits to take place in the east visiting room. The east visiting room has not been impacted and remains operational.

So to specifically answer your question about tomorrow, there will be no legal visits on the west side tomorrow. If there is any change before next week, I will let everyone know as expeditiously as possible.
